

Rain Garden Groundbreaking Ceremony Mayor Newberry in Attendance

On Monday, October 13, Good Foods Market & Café on Southland Drive was the host location for a press conference for the groundbreaking ceremony of the Southland rain gardens project. Guests included Mayor Jim Newberry, City Councilman Don Blevins, and representatives from Lexington Fayette Urban County Government and Kentucky American Water. This soon to be completed project is the result of many hours of pro-bono work done by Scott Southall, Landscape Architect for CDP Engineers, along with Russ Turpin, Environmental Specialist for EcoGro. Scott and Russ are Commercial Coordinators for the Bluegrass Rain Garden Alliance, and they will continue with the design and construction supervision of the Southland Commercial Rain Gardens.
